

Daniela La Foresta

Daniela La Foresta is full professor at the Department of Political Science of the University of Naples Federico II, where she teaches Territorial Marketing, Strategic Planning and Economic Geopolitics. Her research interests focus on territorial innovation processes and geographies of marginal areas, with particular regard to the application of digital technologies to support local development. On these issues he founded and chairs the Observatory "Digital Territories and New Aggregation Tools" (Te|Di).