

Liliya Morska

Liliya Morska is a Full Professor at the University of Rzeszów, Poland. Chairing various departments, she gained practical experience in managerial skill development aimed at improving the efficiency of university faculty professional activity and university marketing for further sustainability. Her research focuses on psycholinguistics, early foreign language learning, teacher education, resilience in academic settings, and the pedagogical implications of identity, IT and AI implementation in professional activity of educators. She is the author of several monographs and over a hundred scientific articles published in leading international journals, including those indexed in Scopus and Web of Science. Professor Morska's international footprint includes academic collaborations and fellowships and projects at several US institutions (the University of Michigan, Northwestern University), the University of Oxford, University of Oslo, University of Oulu in Finland, and Erasmus+ programmes across Europe.