

Agnieszka Pawłowska

Agnieszka Pawłowska is a professor at the Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Rzeszów, Poland. She is a Fulbright and Kościuszko Foundation fellow. The focus of her research is local democracy and governance. Currently, she's the principal investigator in the research project Accountability of Local Authorities. The report and debate on the state of a municipality as a tool for accountability, and investigator in the international project Beyond Borders: Roles of Local Government in the Long-term Integration of Ukrainian Refugees. Insights from Poland and the Czech Republic. Her recent publications focus on advisory councils: Pawłowska, A. (2024). Role sets of advisory councils in local policymaking process: The perspective of council members. Policy Studies, 45(6), 860–882; and political accountability: Pawłowska, A. (2026). Political accountability in three acts. Evidence from Polish municipalities. Intersections. East European Journal of Society and Politics (in print).